Earth is Still Sinking.

The sinking of the ground in the vicinity of Hampton and Eynon streets, caused by falling roof in the big vein which underlies these streets, still continues, and it seems but a question of time before large cavities will be made in the ground. The cavity of last week was chiefly confined to Hampton street, and nearly all the houses lying west of South Main avenue, on that street, dropped in either front or rear from two to ten inches.

The cave-in has begun a fresh, running in a northerly direction. The ground contains a large number of fissures, some of them being many yards in length. The home of J. P. Acker, on South Main avenue, is seriously affected. The rear portion of the building has dropped ten inches, while the front has left its foundation and is standing about three inches above the cellar wall.

The action of the earth has broken the water pipe in the cellar and done other damage. The house adjoining, owned by Mrs. Margaret Acker, is damaged somewhat similarly, with the exception that it is tilted from the corner to corner. The handsome dwellings on Rock street are badly shaken. Two large cracks are observed in the double dwelling occupied by Evan Zachariah and John Richards. The home of Mr. Johnson, on South Main avenue, has dropped several inches, and the Carpenter block on Hampton street shows unmistakable signs of disturbance of the earth beneath. The residents of that portion of the city are greatly worried over the state of affairs.

Morgan Morgans Buried.

The funeral of the late Morgan Morgans, an aged and respected resident of this side, who died on Wednesday evening, occurred at 2:30 o'clock yesterday morning from the family home at the corner of Van Buren avenue and Pine street. The floral tributes included many handsome designs.

Rev. Thomas Bell, of the Plymouth Congregational church, and Rev. D. Jones, of the First Welsh Congregational church, officiated. Slocum lodge, Independent Order of Odd Fellows, attended in a body. Interment was made in the Washburn Street cemetery. The pall-bearers were: Evan J. Williams, John Harris, Charles M. Smith, Nicholas Beunch, Edward Davis and Reese Griffiths.

Mrs. Mary Dowse is dangerously ill with typhoid fever at the home of Mrs. Frank Fisk on North Bromley avenue.

The party of young men will meet this evening at 8 o'clock in the Parochial school for the purpose of organizing a Young Men's Institute.

The new choir formed from members of the old Cypriodorian Choral society and the Protheroe Ladies' choir met for rehearsal last evening in Meers' hall. The attendance was large.

At 7 o'clock Saturday evening a spark from a mine lamp caused a fire in the tower over the Central air shaft. An alarm was turned in from box 39, but the flames were extinguished before the fire companies arrived. The damage was slight.

A "backward" social will be held Thursday evening by the Sunday school classes of Misses Annie Bennett and Abbie Hancock, of the Hampton Street Methodist Episcopal church. A feature of the entertainment will be a unique march by the classes.

Great preparations are being made for the rendition of the oratorio, "Bethany," which will be sung some time next month by the choir of the Simpson Methodist Episcopal church. Among the well known singers who will participate are Misses Mary Jones, Sallie Thomas, Mrs. Frank Beck, Frank Hagen, Lou Jones, William Beck and Professor W. W. Jones.

A new society known as the Eastern Union Building and Loan society has been organized on this side. The officers are: President, Richard Nicholls; vice-president, D. E. Evans; secretary, W. Haydn Evans; treasurer, A. B. Eynon; attorney, David J. Davis; medical examiner, Dr. George B. Reynolds; directors, M. A. Capden, Benjamin Reynolds, Thomas M. Watkins, and Richard Protheroe.

Union services of the Washburn

Street Presbyterian and Simpson Methodist Episcopal churches were held in the latter church yesterday.

In the morning a discourse was given by Rev. L. C. Floyd, and in the evening the services were held by Rev. D. W. Skellinger. The evening service was attended by Hyde Park lodge, No. 329, Free and Accepted Masons.

IN LOCAL THEATERS.

In the "Power of the Press," which will be seen at the Academy of Music tonight, two prominent characteristics cannot escape the attention of those familiar with American plays of today. First the success with which Messrs. Pitou and Jessup have appealed to every class of theater patrons in this play, and second the admirable way in which the actors have treated the profession of journalism, giving it, almost the first time upon the stage, its proper respect and the full force of modern civilization (rather than belittling it, as usual in such productions, by the introduction of an absurd travesty of the workers upon the great newspapers of the day. The story told in "The Power of the Press" reflects in a large degree actual incidents of New York life, and, despite the large number of persons necessarily introduced the play moves rapidly to the ending, which truly repeats incidents in real life.

Elmer E. Vance, whose phenomenally successful plays, "The Limited Mail" and "Patent Applied For," have made him indelibly known to the theatergoer on his laurels and sell, or let out on royalty, but remains with his pet, "The Limited Mail," over-seeing and closely watching every detail, with the idea of perfecting the play to an even performance noticeable in the action of that play. Besides all his arduous work he has, in his leisure moments, been engaged for over two years in writing a new play designed to fit the wonderfully clever and versatile abilities of Little Beaver. "The Limited Mail" will be seen at the Academy of Music tonight.

A sumptuous revival of Bartley Campbell's famous play, "The Galley Slave," will be given at the Academy of Music Wednesday evening. In these days of modern hurricane melodramas, with their mechanical effects, it is occasionally refreshing to return to the melodrama of the old school in which dramatic action is termed, "stage realism." Bartley Campbell was a master of melodrama, and of all his plays none has come more deservedly popular than "The Galley Slave." It blends a story of true dramatic strength, with a skilfully covered background of pure romance, love, misunderstanding, noble sacrifice, retribution and final happiness, these are the elements which go to make the good, old-fashioned play, and which are typical in "The Galley Slave."

"Old Glory," which will be seen at the Academy of Music Thursday night, has been described as the most powerful melodrama of the times. The play deals with international events which have recently stirred comment, some of them being many yards in length. The home of J. P. Acker, on South Main avenue, is seriously affected. The rear portion of the building has dropped ten inches, while the front has left its foundation and is standing about three inches above the cellar wall.

The action of the earth has broken the water pipe in the cellar and done other damage. The house adjoining, owned by Mrs. Margaret Acker, is damaged somewhat similarly, with the exception that it is tilted from the corner to corner. The handsome dwellings on Rock street are badly shaken. Two large cracks are observed in the double dwelling occupied by Evan Zachariah and John Richards. The home of Mr. Johnson, on South Main avenue, has dropped several inches, and the Carpenter block on Hampton street shows unmistakable signs of disturbance of the earth beneath. The residents of that portion of the city are greatly worried over the state of affairs.

NEWSPAPER NEWS.

John R. Wilson is once more the sole owner of the Chicago Evening Journal.

Carbondale's new morning daily, the Anthracite, will issue its first number on Thursday. It presents plans as arranged. It will be independent in politics.

The present management of the Wilkes-Barre Times, having ordered four Mergenthaler Linotype machines similar to those now used by The Tribune, will next April, move into a handsome new home on South Main street.

The Carbondale Leader on Saturday printed a twenty-page industrial number, with illuminated cover. The exhibit it made in this magnificent edition would do credit to a city twice Carbondale's size; but the Leader doesn't mind that.

The Reading Times recently commemorated its seventy-fifth anniversary by issuing an eight-page paper twice as good, because twice as large, as usual. The Times is one of the most carefully and intelligently edited newspapers in the state, thanks to Colonel Thomas C. Zimmerman.

NEWS OF THE SOUTH SIDE

Unprovoked Assault on a Man Named Hopkins at Cedar Avenue Bridge.

SNOW PRECEDES HIGH WIND

Peasces Levelled and Trees Blown Down. No Serious Damage Done to Buildings.

M. J. Donahoe Will Speak About Gettysburg Battlefield Tonight.

A most brutal and cowardly assault was committed yesterday afternoon on Hoarling Brook bridge. A young man who afterward gave his name as Hopkins was walking toward Cedar avenue. Another young man was following Hopkins a few paces behind and without any apparent provocation he took a stone from his pocket and dealt Hopkins a heavy blow on the head. The blow felled him and he laid on the ground with the blood gushing from a large cut in his temple.

He was carried into one of the houses near the bridge and a messenger went to Powers' drug store and asked Mr. Powers to bring the ambulance to the hospital. In the meantime Dr. Gatus, who was passing, attended Hopkins and pronounced his injury a superficial one. The police patrol arrived, but the injured man had regained his senses and was able to walk about. He would tell nothing about himself save that his last name is Hopkins, but he is thought to be a stranger. His assailant is unknown and succeeded in making good his escape.

First Snow Storm of Season.

Snow flakes fell thick and fast for ten minutes in the lower end of the South Side and through Minooka yesterday afternoon. The fall began at 5 o'clock and the ground was covered with a half-inch thickness of snow, but the sun broke from behind the clouds and melted the white element.

The wind blew hard for an hour and the trees were leveled and fences, telephone wires were broken and the service interrupted. Along Pittston avenue the wires were down on the ground and the ground was damaged done to residences, the most of it being no greater than a few broken shutters and fences minus their gables.
